ANTI-SEIZE COMPOUNDS

WHICH ANTI-SEIZE IS BEST FOR MY APPLICATION?

Anti-seize compounds prevent bolts and other mechanical fasteners from binding, sticking (galling) or seizing during assembly and disassembly. They can also be used as lubricants in extreme environments and heavily loaded applications.

Copper anti-seize is a general purpose copper based compound that eases assembly and disassembly of fastenings in industrial and automotive applications.

Nickel is inert, which is better suited for stainless steel and alloys operating in marine and chemically aggressive environments.

Molybdenum Disulphide is non-metallic and can carry higher pressure than copper and nickel, hence its primary use is in areas where nickel and copper anti-seize fail to resist the extreme tightening torque.

MOLYBOND GA50 NON-METALLIC ASSEMBLY COMPOUND

An assembly compound containing 50% Molybdenum Disulphide to be used as an anti-seize and scuffing compound for metal parts. Ideal assembly lubricant for sliding mechanisms, plain bearings, splines and gears.

- ▶ Moly based anti-seize paste
- ▶ Does not contain copper, nickel, aluminium or graphite
- ▶ Excellent anti-seize properties, suitable for use up to 400°C
- ▶ Excellent wear resistance due to high Moly content
